

CALL FOR PROPOSALS: EVALUATING BETTER

TOGETHER

SEPTEMBER 27-28, 2018
UNIVERSITY OF DENVER

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

Evaluating Better Together is the first annual conference organized and led by graduate students in the Research Methods and Statistics Program at the University of Denver. The conference seeks to provide a shared, safe space for the discussion of challenges and lessons learned in our current evaluation work and to foster authentic relationships between current and future evaluation practitioners.

PROPOSAL CATEGORIES

We are seeking proposals from evaluation practitioners, evaluation researchers and students of evaluation. Each conference session will be 45 minutes in length.

PRESENTATIONS

Present a tool, strategy, or approach that can help others in their evaluation work

PROBLEM-SOLVING ROUND TABLES

Present a specific evaluation problem you have encountered, and seek feedback from the table to solve that problem

TEACHING SESSIONS

Lead a skill-building workshop related to the following needs identified by the Denver non-profit community:

- Survey implementation for evaluation
- Impact evaluation
- Tracking longitudinal data
- Weaving equity into evaluation
- Data visualization
- Other relevant topics

STUDENT SHOWCASE ROUND TABLES

Showcase your evaluation work or evaluation-related research

LESSONS LEARNED PANEL DISCUSSIONS

Coordinate a panel discussion on challenge and lessons learned in evaluation

STATE OF THE WORKFORCE PANEL DISCUSSION

We are seeking an individual or team to coordinate a panel discussion on the context of evaluation in Colorado, specifically related to evaluation workforce needs and preparing students to meet those needs

Submit a Proposal by August 15, 2018

Please consider submitting a proposal to participate in the conference. The proposal process is quick and easy (the proposal should be less than 400 words in length). Follow this link to access the proposal submission form:
